The impact of COVID-19 has been keenly felt by Erasmus + projects and XRL is not an exception. This situation has brought new insights and new food for thought. Leadership guides and tips may not have fully prepared us for this pandemic. However, it has presented an opportunity for 'leadership-at-tough-times' for many of the leaders around the world. After these very difficult times, we believe that guidelines on leadership will have to be rethought and rewritten!

With the COVID-19 pandemic in mind, XRL could steer many organisations to teach leadership and empathy skills under pressure. The XRL project can bring you innovative digital views. It can help you develop personal, actionable plans to address the strategy, organisation, and innovation-based opportunities you face. It'll help leaders adapt to the challenges faced by organisations during the pandemic in a fast-paced digital environment. It will equip you with the skills needed to lead yourself – and then translate that knowledge into leading others and forming effective team collaboration in the digital age.

The Partners met face-to-face during February, in Aveiro, Portugal, to validate the work done and define the next steps of the project. Since then, meetings have been held online to discuss the project activities.
